

A political party may apply to the ECQ to become registered for various purposes under the Electoral Act 1992.

An application to register a political party must include:

- A completed application signed by the party secretary (Part D).
- Details of a member of the party who is also a member of the Legislative Assembly (Part C) OR the names and addresses of 500 members of the party who are electors and their membership details (attached).
- A copy of the party's constitution.
- A list of all associated entities.

ECQ must refuse to register a political party if the party's application name and/or abbreviation:

- has more than 6 words; or
- is obscene or offensive; or
- is a party name; or
- so nearly resembles a party name that it is likely to be confused with or mistaken for the party name; or
- includes the word 'independent'; or
- would otherwise be likely to cause confusion if registered.

ECQ may refuse to register a political party if the party's application name and/or abbreviation:

- is a public body name; or
- so nearly resembles a public body name that it is likely to be confused with or mistaken for that public body.

Lodgement timeframe

An application to register a political party can be made with the ECQ at any time; however, the ECQ cannot take any action in relation to the application during an election period.
