Submission text: I fully support divisions each with 1 councillor, interaction between councillors and electors was regular. Contact with councillors about a matter of concern resulted in quick action. Of course, each division had a council office; and that must be returned. Current arrangements leaves too much power in the hands of administrators. Councillors are all but redundant. They seem to have very little standing nor power. They cannot properly represent constituents. What is now in place is not good enough. My division, 1, is 60km from end-to-end. Councillors now are isolated from constituents.
